When all four of his children are struck by a little-known disease, a young father becomes the accidental filmmaker of a life-or-death drama that could change the world of medicine.

"Mito-Kids: Documenting Life" is a short documentary about four teenage sisters who have grown up with disabilities that stem from mitochondrial disease, a chronic, genetic disorder that occurs when the mitochondria of the cell fail to function properly. This video family history follows the Dole family as they are diagnosed with a series of diverse medical problems including diabetes, deafness, seizures, fatigue issues, thyroid problems and dementia.
Frustrated by the lack of information available, they look for answers, while maintaining a focus on living their lives to the fullest.

The short documentary was completed in 2009.
The producers have made this film available to existing Mitochondrial awareness initiatives while working on the feature film version.

The goal of the Mito-Kids documentary is to raise awareness and understanding of Mitochondrial Disease and its connection to epilepsy, diabetes, ALS, Autism, Parkinson's, Alzheimer's, Heart Disease and many other neurological disorders.

Tickets for both screenings are $10

Contributions of $100 include a DVD of the film, 2 tickets to the screening and VIP Reception to follow the 6pm show.
